

MEMORANDUMTO: UCPATH StakeholdersFROM: Peter Taylor, Chief Financial OfficerCC: Tony Lo, UCPATH Initiative DirectorDATE: Monday, October 8, 2012RE: Gayelea Allison named new UCPATH Center Operations Director

I am pleased to announce that Gayelea Allison has accepted the position of Operations Director for the UCPATH Center. As former director of UCLA Payroll Systems and Services, Gayelea brings 29 years of UC experience in payroll and operations to her new role at the UCPATH Center.

Gayelea has worked on the UCPATH initiative for the past year while at UCLA. In that role, she implemented a web based Time and Attendance System, oversaw the bi-weekly payroll cycle conversion, and attended UCPATH configuration and business process mapping sessions. Her familiarity with UCPATH will enable her to be immediately effective in moving the project forward towards go-live.

Gayelea will begin her new role on October 29 and work at the new UCPATH Center in Riverside. Prior to the center opening, she will spend time in Oakland working with the UCPATH Center implementation team.

The Operations Director is one of three key management positions in the UCPATH Center, along with the Executive Director and the Customer Service Director. The Executive Director has been identified and is expected to be announced and assume the role in November. The search for a Customer Service Director is nearing completion. It is expected that all three positions within the management team for the UCPATH Center will be on-board in November.

By investing in new technology, processes, and deploying a shared service center, the UCPATH initiative will improve services for all UC employees at every campus and medical center. With the appointment of Gayelea, we took another big step toward achieving that goal.

Please join me in welcoming Gayelea and wishing her every success in her new role.
