RE: James Leedy Selected As Executive Director of UCPath Center

I am pleased to announce that James “Jim” Leedy has joined the UCPath Center as Executive Director. The University is fortunate to have attracted someone as talented and experienced as Jim to head this critically important venture.

Jim joins the University of California from Tanberg Data Corporation, where he served as Worldwide Director of Finance since 2007. In that role, Jim managed Tanberg’s finance, legal, payroll, human resources, and facilities organizations. Jim’s experience includes 18 years with Hewlett Packard, where he managed a 200+ person shared services organization that has direct applicability to the UCPath Center.

Jim is a graduate of Mount Union College, holds his MBA in Finance from Baldwin Wallace College and graduated from the Accelerated Development Program of the Wharton Executive MBA.

Jim begins his new role immediately and will be based at the UCPath Center in Riverside. Prior to the center opening, he will work in Oakland working with the UCPath Center implementation team.

As Executive Director, Jim joins Gaylea Allison and Bryant Bailess as the third member of the UCPath Center executive team. Both Ms. Allison and Mr. Bailess joined UCPath this fall, as Operations Director and Customer Service Director, respectively.

By investing in new technology, processes, and deploying a shared service center, the UCPath initiative will improve services for every UC campus and medical center.

Please join me in welcoming Jim to the University of California and wishing him every success in building and managing the UCPath Center.
